

To whom it may concern,

This letter is in support of The O'Sheas. The O'Sheas were recently keynote speakers at the TAPC Annual Conference and also served as emcees at our evening awards banquet. As a meeting planner, I am interested in both the quality of the content and the presentation, as well as my ability to easily work with the speaker.

I found that The O'Sheas were easy presenters to work with. They were organized and worked very hard to get material for marketing the program to me quickly. They went above and beyond by shooting two videos, one for marketing purposes and one in conjunction with our awards ceremony. The videos were something very special and extra. They customized their program to meet our membership's needs and to be applicable to our industry and it showed in their program. They spent a significant amount of time making sure the program was "on point" for our audience. From the initial discussions about booking the event, through the planning stages, during the event itself, and after the fact, they made the process easy and came through with what they promised.

Their program was timely. They addressed current issues and packaged it in a way that made attendees want to come. Once there, attendees received the program they expected based on how it was marketed. The program was very interactive and the attendees walked away having learned a lot, had some fun, and with a new perspective. The evaluations were very positive and almost all of them had a notation about wanting them to return to TAPC again.

I highly recommend The O'Sheas as a keynote speakers. They will exceed the expectations of the attendees and of the meeting planner!

Most Sincerely,
